Dm                                                  C
Sun s busting in through the drapes, I awake as a new day starts
                Bb                                              C
Feeling I am clear in my mind, I m alive, I m in love, feel it in my heart
     Dm                                             C
The day opens up on the world like a dream, and I start to smile
                         Bb                                              C
This thing I have with you s not a feeling, a sense it is more like a state of mind

(Chorus)
      F                              C
Wherever you go I will follow, I just wanna be where you are
                 Dm               Bb
Like a shooting star, you shine brightest of them all
      F                              C
Wherever you go I will follow, and it doesn t matter how far
                 Dm               Bb
Like a shooting star, you shine brightest of them all

Dm                                              C
Once I was torn, I was lost, I felt weak until I found you
                       Bb                                              C
You hit me with the spark, a light in your eyes, keep me cool and I feel brand new
          Dm                                              C
Like a breath of fresh air like a natural high, I lose sense of time
                         Bb                                              C
This thing I have with you s not a feeling, a sense it is more like a state of mind

(Instrumental)

 F                    Bb
Love is just like, flashes of light
    Dm                    C
Streaming throughout my heart

      F                              C
Wherever you go I will follow, I just wanna be where you are
                 Dm               Bb
Like a shooting star, you shine brightest of them all
