Journey Of The Magi
Frank Turner

Not sure of the original key, or if this is exactly how Frank does it, but it works for me! Hope you enjoy...

```
G#m       B       B           F#
Moses was old, a chill in his bones.
F#        G#m                  B                       F#
Falling apart, he knew in his heart that his time had come.
       G#m        B           B          F#
As he lay in his tent in the hot desert sands,
    F#           G#m             B                F#
he smiled at how he would never see his promised land.

         E             F#        G#m       E      B
He sang â€œI could have lived and died an Egyptian prince,
   G#m               E
I could have played safe,
           G#m                       F#                      B
but in the end the journeys brought joys that outweigh the pain.â€•

Odysseus sat tired and alone.
Hed always held out against all the doubts that he would come home.
But now he was here, his soul felt estranged.
His wife and his dog, his son and his Gods, everything changed.

He sang â€œI could have stayed and ruled as an Ithican prince,
I couldve played safe.
But in the end the journeys brought joys that outweigh the pain.â€•

Balthazar rode for seven long years, eastwards and far, he followed his star, and it brought him here.
To a stable in ruins in some backwater town,
to a virgin defiled, no king but a child, too small for a crown.

He sang â€œI could have lived with my Gods as a Persian prince,
I couldve played safe,
but in the end the journeys brought joys that outweigh the pain.â€•

Paupers and kings, princes and thieves, singers of songs, righters of wrongs, be what you believe.

So saddle your horse and shoulder your load, burst at the seams, be what you dream, and take to the road.

[Ends on a B chord]
