Here She Comes
Bonnie Tyler

Intro: E A E A E

A                          E      A
Shade begins to steal the light,
                          E        A
confusion throws another mystery.
                           E    A
It s out of focus with the eye,
                           E             A E
so now you wonder is this just a dream.

A                         E      A
Here she comes, here she comes,
                        E           A
she s gonna cause a sensation now,
                          E   A
and just between you and me,
                                    E             A G
I think she ll soon have you temptation bound.

C       Em         D         E
Suppose who knows, she s not above suspicion
C       Em     D               E
Is she, maybe, on some kind of secret mission, better listen!
C          Em       D                  E
Somewhere, somehow, there s still some pieces missing,
C        Em      D                                        E
I sense, I feel, trust my intuition don t rush into your decision.

A                         E      A
Now here s a riddle in a rhyme,
                                    E              A
if she s the same how come she s different now.
                                E      A
The same old eyes but not the shine,
                                      E              A
you know you re certain but you re full of doubt.

                                E      A
Now, here she comes, here she comes,
                              E              A
she s gonna have you at her beck and call.
                             E     A
So why refuse, yeah why contend,
                          E         A G

when all resistance is impossible.

this lady s serious, make no mistake.

Face to face and eye to eye,

she ll cast a spell that you may never break.
