Fist Full of Stones - Key of Am

Am                D2     F             Am
Donâ€™t you worry, I will be fine
Am                                                    D2
I hear theyâ€™re throwing you a party
        F                                         Am
For committing the perfect crime

Chorus:
F                                                 Am
Iâ€™m standing here with my fist full of stones
D2                                    F
I canâ€™t believe how hard I want them thrown
F                                                 Am
Iâ€™m standing here with my fist full of stones
            D2                                  Eaug
Is the crime I condemn my own?

Am              D2       F             Am
Donâ€™t you worry, I will be fine
Am                                D2
Should I congratulate you
        F                                          Am
For committing the perfect crime   (to chorus)

Am                 D2    F            Am
Donâ€™t you worry, I will be fine
Am                                D2
You got away with murder
           F                                          Am
Funny thing, the murder was mine     (to chorus)

Am                                                 D2
Iâ€™m standing here with my fist full of stones
F                                                   Am
Iâ€™m standing here with my fist full of stones
Am                                    D2
Someone is writing words in the sand
         F                                                        Am
The stones become liquid and fall from my hand
