G D C               D                  Em       C
     it felt like springtime on this february morning
         G                    D            G       D
in the courtyard birds were singing your praise
C           D                  Em              C
i m still recalling things you said to make me feel G                  D
alright, i carry them with me today now

    G    D      C       D            G          D                 C
    as i lay me down to sleep, yes i pray, that you will hold me dear
    D                 G    D       C         D         G
    though i m far away, i whisper your name, into the sky
        D              C      D
    and i will wake up happy

G           D  C           D              Em             C
i wonder why    i feel so high, while i m not above my sorrow
         G              D        G
heavy hearted  til you call my name D                   C                  D            Em
and it sounds like churchbells or the whistle of a train
               C               G                   D on a summer evening I want to meet you there, i m barely breathing...

G             D       C            D                G
it s not too near for me, like a flower i need the rain
                 D      C           D              G
though it s not real to me, every season has its change D                C
and i will see you when the sun comes out again
