 F#m          A                                  E5                  B7
Tongue tied, talking to my feet, when thereâ€™s nothing better than self-defeat
  F#m           A                           E5                 B7
I stop, stall, try to stand tall,  when whatever I say means nothing at all
   E7                                 D                                E7
I walk, through all the steps in my head,  it made more sense in my head,
                     D           E7        F#m               A
Plain and simple I canâ€™t keep climbing, I try to find the words
                   B7          F#m             A                  B7
But they wonâ€™t surrender, so I lie to you and say that I donâ€™t remember

                      E5                          D
Singing like a hurricane, dancing like Fred Astaire,
                           E5                                F#m      A   B7
Walking like a young John Wayne,  talking like Iâ€™m falling downstairs
                          F#m      A   B7
Talking like Iâ€™m falling downstairs

  F#m       A                           E5                          B7
Stu-tter,  mutter to myself,  that you canâ€™t quote something from someone else
  F#m              A                           E5
I duck â€“ swerve,  lose my nerve,  itâ€˜s on the tip of my tongue
         B7                        E7                                  D
So just give me the word and Iâ€™ll walk,  through all the steps in my head
                          E7                        D           E7
It made more sense in my head,  plain and simple I canâ€™t keep climbing -
   F#m             A                       B7
I try to find the words but they wonâ€™t surrender
     F#m             A                  B7
So I lie to you and say that I donâ€™t rememberâ€¦

                      E5                          D
Singing like a hurricane, dancing like Fred Astaire,
                           E5

                          F#m      A   B7
Talking like Iâ€™m falling downstairs
                          F#m      A   B7
Talking like Iâ€™m falling downstairs
