No one will know how evil I really am
No one will know how evil I really am

F                              G
Cause I like to wear disguises

Am
And I like to disguise my plans
F                              G                      C
No one will know how evil I really am

C                      C/B Am              F              C
And no one will know truly how I feel
C                      C/B Am      F              C
And no one will know how I truly feel

F                              G
Cause I can no longer differentiate
Am                              F
Between what is fake and what is real
G                              C              E7
I don't know how I feel

My first two days were spent in the care of nuns
F                              G
But my mother found it in her
Am
To go ahead and take me back
F              G    C    E7
And I love her

C              C/B              Am              F              C
And I will always appreciate bad days like this
C                      C/B              Am              F              C
Because they grant me a point of reference in regards to my happiness
