This song just begs to be in a Quentin Tarentino movie...

C
He didn't come home til the light of the day
He wasn't with her he would say
They fought through the morning and all of the day
She'd have to kill him to get him to stay

C
Killing him didn't make the love go away
Killing him didn't make the love go away
Killing him didn't make the love go away
Killing him didn't make the love go away

C
She gave him everything that she had Changed anything he said was bad

F
Love weighed on her heart like marble stone

C
Flash of the knife, he was gone

F
He said he would give her the sun and the moon

F
Now all she has is a six by eight room

C
Killing him didn't make the love go away
Killing him didn't make the love go away
Killing him didn't make the love go away
Killing him didn't make the love go away

C
She thought of him every night and all of the day
Missing her baby she did away
Blowing kisses through the concrete sky
Hoping they'd reach him on heaven high

F
Love weighed on her heart like marble stone

C
Flash of the knife, he was gone

F

He said he would give her the sun and the moon

F

Now all she has is a six by eight room

C

Killing him didn't make the love go away

Killing him didn't make the love go away

Killing him didn't make the love go away

Killing him didn't make the love go away
