Base intro: F-Bb-C#-Eb
С
Sometimes the Universe
                                                                 C#-D
Fits inside my world
There s nowhere else to be
                                                                  C#-D-G
And no place to return
The power in my hands
Let law be made by force
At times my conscience speaks
                                                                                      C#-D-G
But now it s more and more
The day I m waiting for...
C
... Is in the air I breathe
                                                                                     C#-D
Fine and strong and pure
Out in the sea beneath,
                                                                                     C#-D-G
The mountains and the shore
Inside this picture,
                                                              C#-D
A city made by God
Irrational progress
                                                                                         C#-D-G
But now it s more and more
Today the skies are blue
                                           C#
                                                                                                                   Вb
                                                                                                                                           Riff
I hold the sun tight in my arms...

Maybe it s just because
Nobody card to shut the door!
С
I m locked inside your arms,
                C#-D
The key is in my soul
There is no true escape
                  C#-D-G
So here s where I belong
I look around and see
             C#-D
A city made by God
I used to be free
                 C#-D-G
But now I am no more
