The Fall Of Gil-Galad Anois

The Fall of Gil-Galad

D
B
Gil-galad was an elven-king.
C
Of him the harpers sadly sing:
C
The last whose realm was fair and free
D
Between the mountains and the sea.

His sword was long, his lance was keen,

B
A
His shining helm afar was seen;

B
A
The countless stars of heaven s field

B
Were mirrored in his silver shield.

D C
But long ago he rode away,
B A
And where he dwelleth none can say;
B C
For into darkness fell his star
B A
In Mordor where the shadows are.

D C
But long ago he rode away,
B A
And where he dwelleth none can say;
B C
For into darkness fell his star
B C D
In Mordor where the shadows are.
