G      D      G      Em
Down in the willow garden,
         G                      Em
Where me and my love did meet.
G      D                      G      Em
As we set there a courtin ,
         G              D      G
My love fell off to sleep.

Em                      G              Em
I had a bottle of burgundy wine,
         G                      Em
My love she did not know.
G              D                      G              Em
And so I poisoned that dear little girl,
G              D              G
On the banks below.

D      G              Em
I drew a sabre through her,
         G                      Em
It was a bloody knife.
         G              D              G      Em
I threw her in the river,
         G              D              G
Which was a dreadful sight.

Em                      G              Em
My father often had told me,
         G                      Em
That money would set me free.
         G              D                      G              Em
If I would murder that dear little girl,
         G              D              G
Whose name was Rose Connelly.

D                      G              Em
My father sits at his cabin door,
G                      Em
Wiping his tear-dimmed eyes.
         G              D      G              Em
For his only son soon shall walk,
         G              D              G

To yonder scaffold high.

Em                      G                      Em
My race is run beneath the sun,

G                                      Em
The scaffold now waits for me.

G              D                      G                      Em
For I did murder that dear little girl,

G                      D                      Em
Whose name was Rose Connelly.
