

42

Bad Books

This is a great song from the fantastic new Bad Books record, and one of Andy Hull's finest vocally in my opinion. The picking pattern is kind of random, as is characteristic of many songs written by Andy Hull.

CAPO 1

C

When you're with another man inside another home

F

C

Do you adapt to the walls? Do you adapt to the walls?

C

Found the newspaper, thumbing my hands through it, doing another dance,

F

C

Doing what I could with it, don't, you gotta leave me alone

G

F

C

And I wondered if you still lived at home

G

F

C

Yeah, I wondered if you still lived at home

C

What do you think you'd have done without a colder beer

F

C

A fresh pack of zigs and zags, a light and another fag

G

F

C

And I was hungover and you would come hang over

G

F

C

I was hungover and you would come hang over

G

F

C

And stop a biblical fire

C

F

C

You and your dad, what a tragic mishap, ha-ah-ah-ah-ap

G

F

C

When a man loves a drink more than blood

G

F

Am

G

F

And I pace my room for an hour or two every day since 2001

F

C

And I think I talk too much

At the end, it sounds like he goes between C and F a few times before ending on C.