Sometimes it s hard to love someone, till the day that they are done

And I, just had a dream the other night,

I was married to the Queen

And Madonna lived next door, I think she took a shine to me.

And the kids were all grown up, but I had to turn her down

Cause I was still in love with you

Em G A

I m turning the darkner down

G D A

I m calling it my best move

Em G A

I ll get a ticket to what you need-----> same pattern for all chorus

I, remember doing nothing on the night Sinatra died

And the night Geoff Buckley died

And the night Kurt Cobain died

And the night John Lennon died

I remember I stayed up to watch the news with everyone

And that was a lot of nights

And that was a lot of lads

Who lost a ticket to what they need

And I, was busy finding answers while you just got with real life,
Always hoped you d be my wife,
But I never found the time for the question to arrive,
I just disguised it in a song

And so, and never quite the answer
Just a soundtrack to a life, that is over all too soon
Helps to turn the days to night while I was wrong and you were right

And this was a lesson learned,
I m happy to be your fool,
And get you tickets to what you need

(Break - whistle if you want)

I m turning the lights down low
I m ready to make my move
I ll get you tickets to what you need

The chords may be the wrong key and some of the lyrics are a little sketchy but it s a start.
