

The Howling Of The Lonesome Wolf Blue Sky

words and music by Michael Seibt

C# F# C#
The silver sun is sinking / earlier this day
C# F# G# G#
The white clouds in the sky / are fading into gray
F# F#
A couple of kids passing by
C# C#
is fearfully looking to the sky
G# F# C# C#
When the wolf is howling about noon
G# F# C# C#
When the wolf is howling about noon

An old dog is searching / for a place to hide
And a Siamese cat / is hiding by its side
The birds stop singing in the trees
The water stands still in the creek
|: When the wolf is howling about noon :|

The blood / is freezing in the veins
And the broker / is loosing all his gains
The clock stops ticking for a while the waitress sends you a scornful smile
|: When the wolf is howling about noon :|

A cool breeze from the hills / is making your flesh creep
And your wounded soul / is beginning to weep
Sheâ€™s fixing you with ice-cold eyes
Leaving you on your own device
|: When the wolf is howling about noon :|

Bbm C#
The howling of the lonesome wolf it is a broken-hearted sound
Eb Fm
That sends its echo all over the town â€œ
Bbm C#
The howling of the lonesome wolf is full of suffer, full of pain
Eb H7
And itâ€™s burnt forever in our brains
C# Eb F
|: Itâ€™s a mantra that forever will remain :|
