

Train To Nowhere
Blue Sky

words and music by Michael Seibt

C C E E7
Sitting in the train to nowhere, I am staring into the world outside
C C E E7
Green fields as far as the eye can reach, the sky above is opened wide
F F Fm E E
A suitcase with my broken dreams is lying in the rack
C E E7 Am Am
Packed up memories, no reason to look back

Refrain

F G C C/H Am
I see her face in the mirror, but I cannot see her eyes
F G C C/H Am
I hear her voice in the sky, but I only hear her lies
F G C C/H C
I see her face reflecting in the water disturbed by the tears I am crying

No one cares, the train rides on, mile by mile away from home
The passengers are prisoners traveling like some rolling stones
Sitting here in the compartment, close-lipped with blind eyes
Trapped in the rules of our own device.

Refrain ...

When our train passes dirty suburbs, linen is drying in the sooty wind
Some kids are playing in the back-yard, a scene just like an old blue-print
I tear her mendacious letter, the scraps of paper fly away carrying the first true words she said

Refrain ...
