A Scale A Mirror And Those Indifferent Clocks Bright Eyes

C Here is a scale, weigh it out and you will find easily Em More than sufficient doubt that these colors you see Am Were picked in advance by some careful hand  $\mathbf{F}$ G With an absolute concept of beauty C They are smeared and these blurs come in random order Em To color the eyes of your former lovers Am Hers were green like July except when she cried F G They were red C Now I know a disease that these doctors can t treat Em You contract it the day you accept all you see Am Is a mirror and a mirror is all it can be F A reflection of something we re missing C And language just happened, it was never planned Em And it s inadequate to describe where I am Αm In the room of my house where the light has never been F Waiting for this day to end F G And these clocks keep unwinding and completely ignore Em Am Everything that we hate or adore F G Once the page of a calendar is turned it s no more Em Αm So tell me then, what was it for?
