[Verse]

F#m D A Bm

The phone slips from a loose grip

F#m D A Bm

Words were missed, then some apology

F#m D

I didn t want to tell you this

A Bm F#m

No, it s just some guy she s been hanging out with

D A Bm

I don t know, the past couple of weeks, I guess

F#m I

Thank you and hang up the phone

A Bm

Let the funeral start, hear the casket close

F#m D A Bm

Let s pin split-black ribbon to your overcoat

F#m D A

The laughter pours from under doors in this house

Bm F#m

I don t understand that sound no more

D A G

Seems artificial, like a T.V. set

[Chorus]

Bm

Haligh, Haligh, a lie, Haligh

Α

This weight, it must be satisfied

G

You offer only one reply

Α

You know not what you do

Вm

As you tear and tear your hair from roots

```
Of that same head you ve twice removed
Now a lock of hair you said would prove
Our love would never die
Well, ha ha ha
[Verse 2]
         D
I remember everything
                        Bm
The words we spoke on freezing South Street
All those mornings watching you
                Bm
Get ready for school
You combed your hair inside that mirror
The one you painted blue
And glued with jewelry tears
Something about those bright colors
Would always make you feel better
But now we speak with ruined tongues
                                         F#m
And the words we say aren t meant for anyone
It s just a mumbled sentence to
          Bm
A passing acquaintance
But there was once you
F#m
You said you hate my suffering, and you understood
And you d take care of me
You d always be there
Well, where are you now?
[Chorus]
Haligh, Haligh, a lie, Haligh
The plans were never finalized
```

But left to hang like yarn and twine
Dangling before my eyes
As you tear and tear your hair from roots
From that same head that you have twice removed
Now, a lock of hair you said would prove
Our love would never die
And I sing and sing of awful things
The pleasure that my sadness brings
As my fingers press onto the strings
Yet another clumsy chord
[Chorus]
Bm
Haligh, Haligh, an awful lie
This weight would now be satisfied
I m gonna give you only one reply
```

I know not who I am

But I talk in the mirror

To the stranger that appears

Our conversations are circles

To this meaning that I lack

And now, you must live them

Or just not live

But do you want that?

He says the choices were given

Always one sided, nothing is clear
