Repeat chords as above for other verses Doctor Oppenheimer winced when he felt the broken piece of his pace-maker, Unbuttoned his shirt on a subway platform clutching his chest while his vision blurred,
He saw the bane of his creation, the destroyer of the world,
Yeah, truth can lead to solace or a life long bender, It's like wading through a wasteland where a town you love once stood, You just cry each time you think of when times were good,
Napoleon's tailor dressed him in a giant hat and funny platform shoes, Saying anyone can be a hero you just got to force people to look up to you, So when you're talking on a hotline to a suicidal soul, Don't let your voice sound like hot coffee more like a scented pillow

then for ending Dadd2EDadd2E And strive for understanding over being understood

When the times get good,
When the times get good,
when the times get good,
When the times get good,
then finish on: $\mathbf{E}\mathbf{A}\mathbf{Dm}\mathbf{A}$
