Brooks & Dunn

B C# B

                          B  C#
These hony-tonks and bright city lights used to thrill me.
          F#                          B                          C#
I d paint the yown and stumble in at dawn.
          B                          C#                          F#
But now there s no one listning for my footsteps.
                  B  C#
And it s why I ve been down to one more night alone.

CHORUS:

          B                          C#                          F#
I thought I had her wrapped around my fingers.
          B                          C#                          F#
I didn t think this wish would ever Burn.
          B                          C#
I d always thought she d take me back.
          F#                          B
But she taught me the cold hard facts.
  C#                          F#
When it comes to love, Ive got a lot to learn.

B C# F#

                          B  C#
It never crossed my mind that she might leave me.
          F#                          B                          C#
She did her best to love me till the end.
          B                          C#                          F#
If she were here I know I d treat her better.
          B  C#
But I won t ever get that chance again.
