And in sleepless nights, you ll call her name And feel loneliness, cold to the bone

And when the daylight breaks, this old tired heart aches To be such a long way, such a long way from home

And you long for the harbor lights, but you ll never be free Of the craving for refuge and the call of the sea

Always wanting to sell out, but always needing to buy So til the road leads to somewhere and that river runs dry

It s the curse of the traveller Ain t gonna let you be The curse of the traveller And it sure got a hold of me
