

Gone And On Chris Ross

This is a great song that Chris Ross wrote fairly recently. It wasn't on either of his studio albums, but the day he wrote it he posted a video of it on Youtube. CAPO THE 1ST FRET and Youtube the song to figure out the melody (And the hammer-ons Chris plays during the intro and verses)! :D

Intro: Em C Em C

Em

She's a swan in the city

C

She belongs to the melody line

Em

Every push is a promise

C

Every pull is a bottle of wine

Em

I'm a gull in the gutter

C

I belong to the clutter and rain

Em

She's a swan in the city

C

And I let her get away

G

G/F#

Em

C

I should be gone, and on to another fair maiden by now

G

G/F#

Em

C

Shoot for the spring, put wing to the water and soar out of this town

G

G/F#

Em

C

But I'll be here when the winter trades the color for the white

D

And she'll be gone and on to another sky

Em C

Em

She is lost to the lions

C

She believes in the heavier things

Em

Every kiss has a cadence

C

Every kill has the courage of kings

Em

I m a sheep to the slaughter

C

I m asleep in a watery grave

Em

She is lost to the lions

C

And I let her get away

G

G/F#

Em

C

I should be gone, and on to another fair maiden by now

G

Em

C

Shoot for the spring, put wing to the water and soar out of this town

G

G/F#

Em

C

But I ll be here when the winter trades the color for the gray

D

And she ll be gone and on, she ll be gone and on

G

G/F#

Em

C

I should be gone, and on to another fair maiden by now

G

G/F#

Em

C

Head for the south, the mouth of the river that cuts across this ground

G

G/F#

Em

C

But I ll be here when the winter drains the summer from the sun

D

And she ll be gone and on, she ll be gone and on to another love
