When I run my fingers through her hair

She looks like an angel laying there

And she wants me in the evening
To listen close to how she feels
She needs to know I need her
And Heaven knows I always will

And that s almost as much as I love her

She likes to lay down on me
And rest her head on my chest
And softly whisper to me
What she won t share with anyone else

And there s a sweetness in her laughter
When it s just the two of us
And I try so hard to capture
Every little thing she does
