By the Cowboy Junkies off Black-Eyed Man 1991

The money would be pretty good if a quart of milk were still a dollar

Bb F

Or even if a quart of milk were still a quart

Cm Bb

And the hours well, I don't mind

Eb

How they creep on by like an old love of mine

Bb

Its the years that simply disappear that are doing me in

Cm F Bb

Guess I married too young, yeah nineteen was just too young

Cm F Bb Eb

But sometimes you meet someone and you're guts just burn

Cm Bb

Its not that I don't love him anymore

Eb F

Its just that when I hear him coming through that front door

Bb Eb

My heart doesn't race like it did once before

Cm F Bb

But I got a horse out in the country

Eb Ebm Bb

I get to see him every second Sunday

Ebsus4 F Eb Bb

He comes when I call him Yeah he knows his name

Cm F Ebm Bb

One day I ll saddle up and the two of us will ride away

Eb F Eb Bb

The weather I could almost stand

If the sun would shine a little brighter

Or even if the sun would shine at all

But lately it seems to me that this life has lost its mystery and these cold fall mornings seem to bite just a little bit harder

All my friends have settled down

Becoming mothers and fathers without a sound

Except for Cathy, she bought a one way subway ticket and left us all behind

Chorus

This town wouldnt be so bad

If a girl could trust her instincts

Or even if a girl could trust a boy
