Daughter

The strumming pattern is pretty much up to you, it's a preference thing. This is set on the fifth fret because it's what matches my vocal key, but I'm sure you can transpose it to fit for you. Even if it's not 100% accurate or to your liking, if you play around with these chords you will get pretty damn close. There are only 4 basic chords, much like many of Daughter's other songs...

Capo 5: the chorus is C - G - Am - F, although variation happens throughout depending on how you want it to sound.

C Pick it up G pick it all up Am F
and start again
C G
Youâ€™ve got a second chance
F
you could go home
C escape it all Am F
it's just irrelevant
C G
Itâ€™s just medicine
Am F
itâ€™s just medicine
...
C
You could still be G what you want to F
what you said you were Am
when I met you
C Youâ€™ve got a warm heart
G F
youâ€™ve got a beautiful brain
Am C
but it's disintegrating

C G
from all the medicine
Am F
From all the medicine
C G
From all the medicine
Am C
Medicineâ€|.

You could still be F G
what you want to be Am C
what you said you were F C
when you met me
C Am
You could still be G
what you want to be Am
what you said you were
F
When I met you;
Am C when you met me and Am G Am C F
when I met you-ooohhh
