A E
leaving trains, I watch them roll away
D
the southern night cold as hell
A E
it s a ghost town at three am
A E
a fifth away, it calms these landlocked shakes
D A
awake until the sun comes up again
A E
it s always the same, I got this nervous way
D
it keeps my thoughts somewhere else
A E
keeps me lost inside my head
A E
an awful place, some things you can t escape
D A
I ll walk these empty streets alone tonight
D A E
looking for something to remind myself
D A E
here with the stray dogs and the third shift help
F# E
I know that I m slurring these small words
D
I m the only one who heard

A F#
maybe tomorrow, might be tomorrow
E D
everything won t seem so terrible and desperate
A F#
wait til tomorrow, wake up tomorrow
E D
you won t be miserable and looking for an exit
D A
wake up tomorrow

-Solo-
A
there won t be shadows hanging overhead all day

F#

and every stranger won t be a plotting enemy

D

your luck s got to change, it can t stay the same

each passing day I wonder how much bullshit we can take

F#

before we all end up screaming

just gotta make it through tonight
