Oh Susquehanna
Defiance, Ohio

This is a great folk/punk song. The timing on the other tab was great so i used it except fixed the chords that were used to be in the right key/be correct.

Chords used:
C F

Intro:
(mute the strings and strum the rhythm)
C F
C F

C                                                 F
We walk the paths of the banks of the mighty Susquehanna
         C
With our feet made muddy by your tributaries
      F
That trickle their way to the Chesapeake
                   C
It s like we follow I-83 down to the harbor cities
F
Strip malls and the tar-mac
C
People swirling and teaming
F
It seemed so exciting, but now it seems like such a blight

C F

C F

C                                 F
I grew up near Kentucky s Mt. Zion Road
C                                       F
All that was there was some old cemetary
          C                                          F
I wanted nothing more than to be able to walk to the store
    C
Now I don t live there but there s too many stores
      F
Some apartments and a Sunoco

           C                            F
And I wonder what did they do with the bodies?
           C                                    F

And I wonder what did they do with the bodies?

Oh!
F
Susquehanna (repeat this four times)

C  F

C  F

       C
And I miss that place behind my house where I
F
Hiked and climbed and played
          C
Where I d ditch this noisy century or just
F
Hid out from the decade
    C                                    F
M-I homes thought it could stand to be updated
                 C                                      F
Forced it all into a grid until it looks like the funny pages
C                                        F
With every trace of light that seems confined within a frame
    C                              F
The faces move from day to day but the strips all look the same
       C                        F
And the punchlines are resoundingly unfunny
                  C                           F
For those trapped in this architecture of easy money
      C                           F
And I feel like this all come to no good
          C                            F
This kids who populate these cul-de-sacs will never know what stood
          C                  F
Beneath their cookie-cutter houses, fields and streams and woods
             C
They ll sit in cars and wait for mom to drive them
F
Out of this boring neighborhood

C
Oh!
F
Susquehanna (x4)

         C                               F
And I wonder, what did they do with the bodies? (x2)

That s it, thanks to the original poster of this tab for the timing, i just fixed the chords to the correct ones. - tabbed by FightinIrishPJ
