 $3\,$  AM and sleep must be the last thing on my mind

How did it get so late so fast, it still feels like last night  ${\bf Bm}$

Thinking about that sunrise as I turn the keys and drive

Thinking about the last time that I really felt alive  $\mathbf{p}$

Staring blankly at that road that stretches far ahead  $\overline{\phantom{a}}$

I donâ $\in\!\!\!^{\text{\tiny{TM}}} t$  know when ill get back, or when I even left  $\mathbf{Bm}$

Think of lines and dreams and drives and hives that I just met  ${\bf G}$

All along my eyes they burn while dreaming of my bed

A D G

And its a long way home

A D G

Another long day gone

Bm A G

Oh wont you take me home Won t ya

Morning strums the chaos dies and still I feel a mix I canâ $\in$ Th recall what home feels like or if it still exists And this long drive is suicide that never finishes Think of life through every mile and I still smell her skin Now Iâ $\in$ Th losing track of time in here the suns about to rise Thinking how these moments are the soundtracks to our lives And I canâ $\in$ Th wait to taste the air of California skies Take me home to all my own, the home that I canâ $\in$ Th find

And its a long way home Another long day gone Oh wont you take me home Take me home

D

Running back into that place from where I ran away  $\mathbf{Rm}$

Breathing every moment in that soon the time will take  $\ensuremath{\mathbf{D}}\xspace / \ensuremath{\mathbf{Bm}}\xspace$

Think of all the scars; the stars; the hearts I had to break

One day I will find the time I never had to take

And it  $\widehat{a} \in \mathbb{T}$  s a long way home Another long day gone x4

Oh wont you take me home
