

Dont Say Your Love Is Killing Me
Erasure

C                      G
My eyes are closed

Am                                      F
And I ve nothing more to say

C              G              Am                                      F
But I was so williiiiiiing to give it all away

C                      G
And what a show

Am                                      F
I ve loved you all I could

C              G              Am                                      F
When will I see youuuuuuu, is nothing understood?

G                                      F                                      G                                      F
You thought I was stupid, but now I stop at nothing (I stop at nothing)

G                                      F                                      G                                      A
I thought you were better but love s gonna take a man

D
Yeah, love s gonna take a man

G                                      Em                                      C
Don t say your love is killing me

D                                      G
You know how much it means to me

Em                                      C
I too have feelings deep inside

C                                      G
But would not hurt your foolish pride

Interlude: C Bm Am

C                                      G
Heaven only knows

Am                                      F
At your every turn a scandal

C                                      G
But how does it suit youuuuuuu

Am                                      F
When it s all too much to cope with?

G                                      F                                      G                                      F
You thought I was nothing before you stepped into my life (stepped into my life)

G                                      F                                      G                                      A
I thought you were clever, but love s gonna take a man

D
And you haven t got it in you
