                   A           G            D
You broke my heart so many times that I can t count the pieces
              A           G            D
Every time you push me down, it seems I break in pieces
A                 D              A               G
How many times do you have to fall, while people stand there gawking?
D                    A          G          D
How many times do you have to fall, before you end up walking?

I tried to give you all I have, to prove that I m not bluffing
                      A            G          D
They say it s a man with nothing to lose who ends up losing nothing
   A              D              A                 G
My head is full of scheming dreams and my tongue tied up from talking
D                    A          G          D
How many times do you have to fall, before you end up walking?

I tried to give you all I have, I thought our love was strong
                       A           G          D
Thought that I could treat you right, how did I treat you wrong?
A              D              A             G
Won t you even open the door to see the wares I m hawking?
