

Underwood Typewriter

Fionn Regan

This is how i play this song, and it might not be entirely correct, but close enough hopefully.

Fionn Regan - Underwood Typewriter

F                    C                    G
The roots go deep below ground
Am                Em                    F
I like to walk with you in the evening
F                C                    G
Up the hill and back down
Am                Em                    F
I watch the mailboat from the clearing

D                G                A                A                G                A
My mind is so confused, I climb back on top of you
                  Am    Em                F                                G    Em                F
And I m changing the ribbons in this old underwood
G                E                F                                Am                Em                F
Step put of your dress and I ll wear you like a hood
Am                Em                F
For a hood is a home
G                                Em                                F
for someone who lives alone

F                    C                                G Am                    Em                    F
I draw a line from A to B and what happens in between
F                    C                                G Am                    Em                    F
It is an open mystery as far as I can see

D                G                A                A                G                A
My mind is so confused, I climb back on top of you
                  Am    Em                F                                G    Em                F
And I m changing the ribbons in this old underwood
G                Em                F                                Am                Em                F
Step put of your dress and I ll wear you like a hood
                  Am    Em                F
For a hood is a home

F                    C                                G
The roots go deep below ground
Am                Em                    F
I like to walk with you in the evening
F                C                    G
Up the hill and back down
Am                Em                    F

I watch the mailboat from the clearing

D G A A G A
My mind is so confused, I climb back on top of you
Am Em F G Em F
And I m changing the ribbons in this old underwood
G Em F Am Em F
Step put of your dress and I ll wear you like a hood
Am Em F
For a hood is a home
G Em F
for someone who lives alone

F C G Am Em F
I draw a line from A to B and what happens in between
F C G Am Em F
It is an open mystery as far as I can see

D G A A G A
My mind is so confused, I climb back on top of you
Am Em F G Em F
