

Amity Gardens
Fountains of Wayne

I saw a lack of this song anywhere, so I decided it was about time someone posted a decent rendition of this little croon. Here s my interpretation, enjoy!

VERSE 1:

Ebm                      B
angel broke her wing
F#                      B
oh you poor thing
         G#m              Ebm              F#              C#
the hum of the motor gave way to the tick tick Ebm                      B                      F#              B
ticking of the clock and the rattle of springs
         G#m                      C#
the buick s in the drive
         G#m                      C#7
its good to be alive

CHORUS:

F#              C#              G#m              C#
and if you knew now, what you knew then B                      F#              B                      C#
you wouldn t wanna go home, wouldn t wanna go
         F#              C#              G#m              C#
if you knew now, what you knew then B                      F#              B              C#              F#
you wouldn t wanna go to amity gardens again

VERSE 2:

it isn t very much
but for now its home
a room in the shadow of a funny lookin man
on the phone to the bank about a default loan
I thank you very much ta ta we ll keep in touch

CHORUS:

BRIDGE:

C#
     where you, came from

and act like you tried G#m                      Ebm
     cause some things are better kept F#

deep down inside

G#m

Ebm

F#

but you re not driving you re along for the ride

G#m

C#

just checking out the scene

G#m

C#7

and taking in the green
