

Amity Gardens
Fountains of Wayne

I saw a lack of this song anywhere, so I decided it was about time someone posted a decent rendition of this little croon. Here s my interpretation, enjoy!

VERSE 1:

F#m                    D
angel broke her wing
A                    D
oh you poor thing
          Bm            F#m            A            E
the hum of the motor gave way to the tick tick
F#m                    D                    A                    D
ticking of the clock and the rattle of springs
          Bm                    E
the buick s in the drive
          Bm                    E7
its good to be alive

CHORUS:

A            E            Bm            E
and if you knew now, what you knew then D                    A                    D                    E
you wouldn t wanna go home, wouldn t wanna go
          A            E            Bm            E
if you knew now, what you knew then D                    A            D            E            A
you wouldn t wanna go to amity gardens again

VERSE 2:

it isn t very much
but for now its home
a room in the shadow of a funny lookin man
on the phone to the bank about a default loan
I thank you very much ta ta we ll keep in touch

CHORUS:

BRIDGE:

where you, came from

and act like you tried Bm                                    F#m
cause some things are better kept
A

deep down inside

Bm

F#m

A

but you re not driving you re along for the ride

Bm

E

just checking out the scene

Bm

E7

and taking in the green
