I took off my clothes,

She took off hers too,

With no fanfares

And no hallelujahs.

Throughout the night,

I would grind away the truth;

That there s nothing sadder
Than sad, sad sex,
And the bad, bad news
Is that I gave in
To the ugly hand
That first led me away from you.

The fun stuff
Is not so fun without you.

So I drink until
I fill my brim,
But there s nothing
Fills me up the same
As a tiny word
Broadcast across the sea.

And should I go out
To dance tonight?
Well my two left feet
Need your two right
Or I ll spin around
In circles endlessly.

The fun stuff
Is not so fun without you.

Well the city was born
Bright blue today,
And I whistled through
The sunlit streets
And my empty hand
Felt cold and unused.

And I m quite all right,
I get by just fine;
I m not depressed,
Not most of the time.
It s just the fun stuff
Is much less fun without you.

The fun stuff
Is much less fun without you.
