

Till Today

E A E
You say you will look for me in the morning

A F#m E
Even if itâ€™s just to throw your arms around

 A E
But I guess that I should give you one fair warning

A F#m B
Thereâ€™s a way past my eyes for which Iâ€™m bound

D E
And Iâ€™ve got movinâ€™ on my mind

D E B
Even though it seems so hard to find my way back home

I guess Iâ€™ll just go past this time called never
Till today is just a thought to stand behind
See a thousand memories unfolding
The yesterdays are dark and resigned
With all the past promises Iâ€™m holding
I see someone never broken (?)

Still without a thought to let you down
Canâ€™t forget to know what I have found, itâ€™s hard to lose

I guess Iâ€™ll just go past this time called never
Till today is just a thought to stand behind

Far beyond the things I could prove to you
Even past the simple reason I could find
If love dies I know Iâ€™ll never will forget you
And I needed just to know to ease my mind

Like the mirror underneath the sun
Time reflects all that I have done to understand

I guess Iâ€™ll just go past this time called never
Come tomorrow and today is far behind
Come tomorrow and today is far behind

Ps: Sure this is only a Gene Clark written song for the band Rose Garden
I transcribed the lyrics myself but I m not happy so please feel free to correct them.