

Leave No Man Behind
Hans Zimmer

Hans Zimmer_-_Leave No Man Behind (v1.7)

Tabbed by:RaZoRb0|z

Tuning: Standard (E A D G B E)

This is the chord version of the song, which should be played together with another guitar playing the plucking version found in the same artist name (LOOK FOR IT! DON T BE LAZY!) and a flute and piano. Someone on the drumroll would be nice too. Try it. Not a easy song I would say... but very nice once played.

Version 1.7 - Corrections made to chords in bridge. 8th January 2004

Version 1.5 - Corrections made to verse and chorus arrangements. 8th January 2004

Version 1 - First release. 8th January 2004

Played by itself, these chords sound stupid. So you gotta get someone to play the tabs. No choice =) MUAHAHAHAHA! Anywayz, if you have any comments, write them down, or e-mail me, and I ll look into them and determine whether they really should be like that or not. Also, you HAVE TO LISTEN TO THE SONG WHILE PLAYING to get the feel of the timing cause I can t really write timings to a song without lyrics unless I physically write the actual time in the song which is also impossible cause some songs skip parts and all that nonsense so yeah just listen to the god damned song while playing will ya? Hahaha... Oh... piece of advice... Sometimes you ll have to strum all 6 strings, while at other times you strum only the bass strings... And even sometimes you only strum the other 3 strings... You ll have to figure that out for yourself cuz everyone has different tastes.

Verse 1 The first few verses and the first chorus sound better
Verse 2 without the strumming, gives the quiet mood, but nobody s
Verse 1 stopping you from playing them. just follow the chords
Verse 3 below. Remember, these few verses and the first chorus
Chorus 1 Are ALSO in the actual song, just that the strumming
Chorus 2 guitar doesn t play them.
