The Moonbeam Song Harry Nilsson

The Moonbeam Song - Harry Nilsson

The song is played by 2 guitars [besides strings etc]. I tried to catch the feel into 1 guitar.

Intro:

As it

G7*

slid across your windowpane?

                               ever watched a moonbeam,
Have you
                  G7*
As it
                   slid across your windowpane?
         G7*

           struggled with a bit of rain, Or danced about the weathervane, sat along a moving train, And wondered where the train has been.

Or C7*
Or on a fence with bits of crap, A- round its bottom,
F*
                                                                                           F*
        Blown there by a windbeam.
                                                                                                D7*
Who searches for the moonbeam,
                                                                                                       Who was last seen

         Looking at the tracks Of the careless windbeam

          moving to the tracks, Of the tireless freight train
            G7*
And lighting up the sides,
                     G7*
                           weathervane - And the bits of rain
Of the
And the windowpane - And the eyes of those

Who think they saw what hap- pened
                               ever watched a moonbeam,
Have you
