

Pandoras Child

Henry Ate

Pandora's Child - Henry Ate
Courtesy of Joris Van Gaal
J.A.P.Gaal@rf.rabobank.nl

This song has some nice chords which make intensively use of unfretted strings. In this way the strings do a really nice voicings as is the case with 'open' chords. These are the 'unusual' chords that are used in song. The lines represent the strings of your guitar with the high E on top and the low E on the bottom.

Dots point out to where strings are to be fretted. Some dots appear at the most left vertical bar, which that it is played as an open string. So, the Esus chord below says that 3 strings are played 'open' and that the fretted notes resemble an A, B.

Esus      Bsus      Amaj7sus

Asus

You'll have to finger out your own fingering positions and then you'll hear what a nice, rich chords these I'm not sure whether these chords are exactly the same as Karma's, but I thought that these came close. And once you mastered these chords and the song, pay particularly attention to the way these chords are the rythm guitar. Good luck and have fun!]

Intro: E Esus Asus Amaj7sus
E Esus Asus Amaj7sus
Bsus Asus
Bsus Asus

E            Esus            Asus
A voice of darkness. Set your heart aside
                 Amaj7sus
Put away the black box, Pandora's child
E      Esus            Asus      Amaj7sus
For those who see it may not understand

E      Esus            Asus
Still charming butterflies by candle light

Amaj7sus

On sundays selling roses to the moon

E Esus                    Asus Amaj7sus

For out of the darkness comes light

Bsus

So I'll stop pretending

Asus

No reason to hide

Bsus

Your envy progressing

Asus                    [hold]

The day I met Pandora's child

The earth turned backwards, I didn't care

The sun came out of the night to stare

For out of this darkness comes light

A voice of darkness warned beware into my arms

Remaining there

for if you love me don't let go

And I'll stop pretending

No reason to hide

Your envy progressing

The day I kissed Pandora's child

These walls change color. Shapes set aside

Put away the black box, Pandora's child.

For into the womb of a flower pours rain.

Pandora's child so named remain

And I'll stop pretending

No reason to hide

Your darkness ending

For I'm in love with Pandora's child