Lyrics:

 It s knowing what s important hidden lockets of your hair felt excactly every moment even moments we never share And all this land has been discovered every frame infront of me is describing in a story a familiar history

Through a city that s all closing atleast it s closing in on me but you re too old to remember or I m too young to agree Secret teachings take me somewhere strange shadows gained and bottles drain let your tears fall in the shape of everyone of the American states

If I could see your face before it s born and raised before it was born and raised in memories wake

Reassure me into changing names vision strained a seconds change to be secure of everything if I could make another world We re like flies landing on flies we suffer what we never try so I slick my hair and I stamp my feet until the darkness until the darkness is complete

in memories wake
