Verse

I was watching a movie the other night on T. V.

The actress reminded me of you

Her attitude, the way that she smiled

She was doing a part girl, like you used to do

I do believe you played it better

If it wasn t better, it was just as strong

I would ve called you up on the telephone that night

But somehow girl, it d been all wrong

Get in there!

Verse

I heard you married a stranger

G C G C

In a horse and carriage that was covered with gold
 Well, you wanted to be different and still fit in
 I wonder if you feel different at all now that you re older
 Hope you didn t lose that innocent laughter
 Oh, God I hope time didn t take that away
 All those junior high nights underneath the front porch light
 A good Catholic girl during the day

Oh, oh just watching the time grow
 Old enough to know that these memories can t hurt a thing
 Oh, oh just watching the time grow
 If I saw you today, girl I wouldn t even know ya

Verse

Well I know it wasn t that big of a love affair
 But boy, it sure seemed like one back then
 When I parlay the memories into their proper places
 I can see now we were no more than friends
 Ooh your kisses sure tasted sweet
 But I guess any kiss tastes sweet at fifteen
 I just hope your touch is as warm to your ol man
 As it seemed like it was to me

Oh, oh just watching the time grow
 Old enough to know that these memories can t hurt a thing
 Oh, oh just watching the time grow
