D(pm)                              A(pm)
I was wrong so please listen up
          B(pm)                              A(pm)                              G(pm)
You re building up walls and I know it makes you feel tough
                              D(pm)                              A(pm)
Believe it or not I was trying to help
          B(pm)                              A(pm)                              G
I was doing my best but I know I didn t do well

CH. 1:

D                              A                              G
When we fight and I raise my voice at you
          D                              A                              G
Are we arguing so we can t hear the words?
          D                              A                              G
I feel as if I m all alone no one by my side
          A                              (stop)
But I know (but I know) why you re in my life

D-A-E*-G*-F#* (4X)

D                              A
A loose tongue cuts so deep
          B                              A                              G
I leave it there even though I cause you to weep
          D                              A
My big mouth causes a stir
          B                              A                              G
She loses respect for me I lose it for her

D                              A                              G
Foolish words cause a mound of my distrust
          D                              A                              G
Or so we really think that things might not work out
                              D                              A                              G
Cause we re born again by a love that s much deeper and much wider
          A
But I know (but I know) why you re in my life

D-A-E*-G*-F#* (4X)

Note: this is a great song from a great Christian punk band. Spread the love of Jesus Christ through and music!
