

And so on...

She only cries at night
When the children are gone
She gets up to wipe away her eyes
In the blue light of the dawn

Laying on your chest
She s like a tiny cat
Brought up and broken on the street
You know shes the only one that even knows where you re at

You say I don t turn you on
Until it s time for me to go

She says crawl over here
I got something else to say
Poring whiskey in your coffee cup
She says I swore you liked it that way

She tells you how to stay alive
Acting like she s cleaning up your place
You can see every single star in the sky
Written on the expression of her lonely face

Until it s time for me to go
