

The Lark

Kate Rusby

Intro - G, C, G, D x2

Verse 1

G                    D                    C                    G
Out in the field where the lark it flies,
Em                    D                    C                    G
Over the earth where my heart it lies,
G                    D                    C                    G
Oh how it sings when the west wind blows,
C                    G                    D                    G
Out in the field where no-one goes.

Chorus

Em                    D                    C                    G
Oh how I m cold will you let me in,
   C                    G                    C                    D
If you could hear me speak, where I would begin,
Em                    D                    C                    G
Time it is past now and I roam free,
   C                    G                    D                    G
Is it wrong to wish you still need me,
   C                    G                    D                    G
is it wrong to wish you still need me.

Verse 2

G                    D                    C                    G
Out in the field where the lark it sings,
Em                    D                    C                    G
There I was waiting for all love brings,
G                    D                    C                    G
There I stood and there I fell,
C                    G                    D                    G
Out in the field that I know well.

Verse 3

G                    D                    C                    G
Out in the field where the lark resides,
Em                    D                    C                    G
Here I ll remain where my heart can hide,
G                    D                    C                    G
Only the lark and the west wind know,
C                    G                    D                    G

I m in this field where no-one goes.

Repeat chorus
