

Always On My Mind

Keaton Henson

Tabbed from "The Crypt Sessions" :

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-ieY2VTDFAg>

In standard tuning, but with Capo on 2nd fret.

All chords are relative to the capo. Get rid of the capo if it's a bit too high to sing.

Pick it how you want but in the video he doesn't play much of the high E string when playing G chords, (but does for the D chords).

Also the chorus is played with a smidge more emphasis and the number of times he sings "always on my mind" changes per chorus.

The C at the end of the last chorus sounds abit odd but he fits his singing to it.

Listen to the timings: the chords always come in just before the singing.
