Lyrics:

It s hard, hard enough to bring you to your knees
Harder than you want it to be
So hard harder than you, and harder than any heart could ever be
And it first you might wanna go and act tough
And want to fight or put your fist up
And then you realize no matter how hard you try

When you see the storms
Don t start running
There s a bright day coming
There s a bright day coming
When you feel the earth below you crumbling
There s a bright day coming
There s a bright day coming

Well you know, no matter where you go these days
It s near impossible to get away
Far enough to fight the feeling that the ground might just cave
And second-guessing every step you take
And always looking for the fire escapes
And people staring at you funny don t stop pay your money and move along

When you see the storms
Don t start running
There s a bright day coming
There s a bright day coming
When you feel the earth below you crumbling
There s a bright day coming
There s a bright day coming

When you see the storms

Don t start running
There s a bright day coming
There s a bright day coming
When you feel the earth below you crumbling
There s a bright day coming
There s a bright day coming
