C F C
Sun falls down like the memory of a sword,
AM G C
Turned everything from gold into grey.
C F C
There s a light that still finds your face,
AM G C
Giving all the dust and shadows a name.

C F
And the night turns just as cold as the surface of the moon,
AM G C
Showing nothing more than sorrow and the faith,
C F C
There s a sight sitting slowly in my mind,
AM G C
With a sound that is waking up the shade.
AM G C
With a sound that is waking up the shade.

F G
It s you, my love, so kind are your eyes,
C
I see them in the darkest skies.
F G
If it s true, my love, I ve got to see the way
C AM G C
I ll love you till my dying day.

(Dying day)

A feeling hits your heart like an arrow in the snow,
Waking all the blood that s sweeping in your veins.
It s alright for it that you don t really know
Just how the water s going to deal with your remains.

Just how the water s going to deal with your remains...

There s a spirit in your mind, I can see it in your eyes,
Like a gift you bring to ease a trouble too.
Where we cast another storm beneath the sad stained moon,

And wait to find ourselves alone,
In a room.

And wait to find ourselves alone...

It s you my love, so kind are your eyes,
I see them in the darkest skies.
If it s true, my love, I ve got to see the way
I ll love you till my dying day.

It s true, my love, so kind are your eyes,
I see them in the darkest skies.
If it s true, my love, I ve got to see the way
I ll lolve you till my dying day.

Dying day...
