Verse:

Love at sweet sixteen,
The king and queen,
The wedding bells,
Could well have warned,
What time would tell.

The cut above her eye,
She could not hide,
From the little boy,
Who knew it wise,
To not make noise.

Chorus:

Now he s gone more often,
And she s found ways to forget,
And the little boys hatred,
Is not shown yet.

Verse:

The wife of a workingman,
Pills in hand, neath a teary sleeve,
Their love was true,
But could not conceive.

Years and years go by,
The things they tried, but fate had wrote,
To not give life,

Would kill them both.

Chorus:

Now he goes to houses,
Where kissing is banned,
And she has a daughter,
But she s missing her man.

Near or far from your mind,
All this happens all the time.

End on G

Thanks for looking.
