C                              D
I imagine a place at the dawn of creation
   G                         C
A cityscape we paint in the dark
          C                      D
There s a castle between this obscene blue horizon
      G                          C                    Am
Where golden apples hang in the trees and a bare lady sings
                            D
Behind the curtain, heaven awaits

A fountain fathers swans form the lake

There s a tower that s made of risqué, rude temptation
      G                         C
Where lovers lay with boundaries erased
                       Am
Once you get past the gray

Behind the curtains, terror awaits

So I ll say my goodbyes to the earthly delights
          G                       C
While my perfect eden goes down in flames
    C                   D
I m eaten alive by the mouth of a monster
     G                            C
While fearlessly calling out your name
```
