D G
Morning wakes softly and gently stirs the shadows from sleep

A D
dreaming of days long and lazy under the sun.

G
This city can't make up her mind to rain or to shine, so she

A A7
does both at the same time, shooting rainbows across a

periwinkle sky.

D G
Once in awhile she pulls up her clouds and shows you her elegant side

A A7 D
wild beauty she does not give freely. Green Lake your indigo waters seduce

G A A7 D
your lover, the night, lights trace your shores while the deep blue descends on you,

G A D
Showering longing kisses under the gaze of the moon's misty eyes.

D G
She asks for your soul to seal the deal and you sigh, you're not sure why

A A7 D
you came but you know you can't leave.

D G
This city can't make up her mind to rain or to shine, so she does both at the

A A7 D
same time, shooting rainbows across a periwinkle sky.
