

Graham Pratt Alan Corner Dennis Haynes - Reminiscing
Misc Unsigned Bands

Reminiscing c. Dennis Haynes, Alan Corner & Graham Pratt 1986.

G                    A            Em            A
The soft morning light on a lake is so lovely
G                    A            Em A
It near brings a tear to my eyes
G                    A            Em            A
Cotton white clouds floating by high above me
G                    A            Em A deep in the blue of the skies

Em                    A                    Em                    A
Reminiscing of times as a boy a walk in the country I used to enjoy

G                    A            Em            A
Summer to winter it changes so slowly
G                    A            Em            A
the grass laden hillsides get covered in snow
G                    A            Em            A
the trees in the forests lose their leaves so quickly
G                    A            Em            A
the wind from the north it blows so cold

Em                    A                    Em                    A
Reminiscing of times as a boy a walk in the country I used to enjoy
Em                    A                    Em                    A
Reminiscing of times as a boy a walk in the country I used to enjoy

G                    A            Em            A
Spring time has come and the birds sing so sweetly
G                    A            Em            A
and when they sing its a beautiful sound
G                    A            Em            A
the flowers arrive dressed in colours so brightly
G                    A            Em            A
a blanket of clover it covers the ground

Em                    A                    Em                    A
Reminiscing of times as a boy a walk in the country I used to enjoy
Em                    A                    Em                    A
I remember those feelings so strong but now those forests and fields are all gone...