Katy Mcallister - Worth Fighting For Misc Unsigned Bands

Ok this is my first tab so be nice. :)I m not certain that these are the right chords but I m pretty sure.

   G   D
The sky is turning golden now.

                   Em
Wish you were with me, now.

             C
My body aches for you.

     G
Feels empty since you left

    D   Em
Is anybody left, that isnâ€™t broken?

         C
shattered, confused.

   G   D
Itâ€™s not that i dont understand your side

                 Em
itâ€™s just hard to contemplate why this

          C
love so deep goes unanswered

 G   D
im going places in this life

         Em
and i want you by my side

         G
do you remember that night

  G   D
as you tell me good bye

         Em
i see that look in your eyes

```
                               C
i never wanted you to break down

  G                                    D
we found real love in this cold world

                      Em
isn t that what life is about

                      D
We get away from this town?

D                          C
i know exactly how i hurt you,

                              Em
theres nothing left but the truth

                      G
we can change this life

                 D
once upon a time.

                         Em
i know theres so much more

                            C isnt that worth fighting for

G D Em C

  G
its been so long im growing.

  D                                  Em
we ve lost the only one who can fix me,
                          C
now it s me who s breaking down.

G
i know you see me broken

      D
but theres so much unspoken

      Em
please give us hope.

                        C
```

because ill never let you go.

  G   D
its not that im forgiving myself.

                                  Em
it s just im going through hell.

                                  C
to try and think of words to save me.

G   D
its not so much i am missing you.

                                  Em
its more like im so lost without you.

                                  C
i give anything for you to just take me.

  G   D
as you tell me good bye

                                  Em
i see that look in your eyes

                                      C
i never wanted you to break down

 G   D
we found real love in this cold world

                              Em
isn t that what life is about

                              D
We get away from this town?

D   C
i know exactly how i hurt you,

                                    Em
theres nothing left but the truth

                            G
we can change this life

                  D
once upon a time.

```
                                        Em
i know theres so much more

                                   C isnt that worth fighting for
```

```
                                        Em
i know theres so much more

                                   C isnt that worth fighting for
```